*Backup Files (and Folders) and Displays the List of Backups.Additional Notes: Use with Visual Backup solution.The developer provides support: (C) Synei Software. All rights reserved. You do not have the required permissions to view the files attached to this post. In one of the previous posts I provided a method to find out if you have any Windows 7 SP1 Activation Keys. This is a very handy utility, as you have probably lost your original key by now, if you haven't already. In this post I would like to provide you with a step by step guide on how to activate Windows 7 SP1 on your computer, if you have not already activated the operating system. Firstly, you should know that this can be a very time-consuming process, especially if you do not want to activate the OS on more than one PC. But there is still a way to do so, which is given to you in the next paragraph. Let me begin by saying that Windows 7 SP1 is available for download only on For some reasons, they don't provide the opportunity to download it directly through the Windows Update utility or Windows Update.exe. You can see the key for Windows 7 SP1 at this link. Alternatively, you can use this link: After purchasing, you get an e-mail with the activation key. It also includes two files: License.txt and License.rtf. These files are used to activate Windows 7 SP1, but also to activate Windows 8.1 later. I will go into more detail about this later. The first step in the process is to download the files to your computer. Afterwards, you will need to install the RAR archive in your computer. You can download and install it through File Explorer, or just go to Control Panel. Click on the arrow on the far left to start the installation. You will need to run the RAR archive through the executable file, which can be downloaded in the same link as the RAR archive. In the end, you will see a screen with a message that Windows 7 SP1 is ready for activation. Windows 7 SP1 now needs to be activated. To do so, open the Windows Activation dialog box, and click on the button labeled ◆ 77a5ca646e
